Re: Georgia Power Reliability and Quality of Electric Service; Docket No. 11941-U, Annual Filing

Dear Ms. Tanner:

Enclosed is Georgia Power's filing of 2022 Customer Satisfaction Survey Information, including reliability components, along with supporting statistics in response to the order issued in the aforementioned docket.

The attached 2022 system average interruption duration index ("SAIDI") and system average interruption frequency index ("SAIFI") data were calculated according to the IEEE Standard 1366-2003 2.5 Beta Method for the Residential and General Business customer segments. Georgia Power uses the Net Promoter Score for Managed Accounts, previously identified as the Large Business segment. The Net Promoter Score results are attached on the fourth and fifth pages of the filing.

Please call me at (404) 506-3044 should you have any questions regarding this report.

Sincerely,

/s/ Kelley M. Balkcom

Managed Accounts are asked, "Assuming everyone could choose their utility, how likely is it that you would recommend <Georgia Power> to a friend or colleague?" The Net Promoter Score is calculated as Promoters (% who rate the question 9 or 10) MINUS Detractors (% who rate the question 0-6). In 2022 Georgia Power's score was 64.

Managed Accounts are then asked, "We would like to know what factors influenced the rating you gave. Please rank each of the following factors in order of influence with 1 being the factor that most influenced your rating and 7 being the factor that leased influenced your rating." The results for Georgia Power are below. Reliability is considered the most important attribute.

1. Reliability
2. Account Manager Responsiveness
3. Problem Resolution
4. Cost
5. Communication timeliness and relevance
6. Company trustworthiness
7. Energy usage review and recommendations
