Natural Gas Hedging

Docket No. 23540-U

SUMMARY OF UTILITY FUEL HEDGING PRACTICES:

Each of the Southern Company operating companies (OPCOs), including Southern Power, utilize hedging instruments to manage fuel price risks. Most hedge transactions are simple fixed-for-float financial swaps executed with a financial institution, or bank with whom SCS hedges. Occasionally, call or put options might also be executed.

SCS executes hedge transactions as agent for Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, and Mississippi Power.* SCS assists in planning, analyzing and identifying hedge opportunities for this group of operating companies. Execution of hedge transactions for this group occurs as a result of having received previous approval from the appropriate operating company executives. This approval provides SCS with the guidance and latitude to hedge certain quantities of gas within certain price ranges under specific hedge strategies. Once approval is granted, SCS may hedge within these approved limits.

Each gas trade is entered into GEM Trader, the SCS deal capture system for a specific operating company. SCS, as agent for each of the Southern Company OPCOs, enters into hedge transactions with financial counterparties for each specific OPCO individually, not as a group, and the costs for that particular hedge are assigned to and accounted for that specific company. For example, when SCS executes a hedge for Georgia Power, it is entered into Georgia Power's gas book via the SCS hedge accounting system (GEM Trader). The attached Microsoft Excel workbook contains a summary of the administrative costs of the hedging program and a summary of hedging gains and losses. In addition, the attached PowerPoint files include correspondence related to hedging strategy and recommendations.

* SCS executes hedge transactions for Southern Power at its direction.
